INTRODUCTION

Cultural is the identity of a nation that has the characteristics and knowledge of a particular group of people, composing of language, religion, cuisine, social habits, music and art which distinguish one society. The culture and customs are the centers of the social order in Timor-Leste communities. Longtime ago, in Timor-Leste up to now, the majority of Timorese's belief links with the power of the universe is considered as the value of religion. Therefore, culture means the entire way of a social life that consists of all the shared products of giving society with its values, knowledge, and norms.

Rocher (2014) expressed his point of view that culture is a system of behaviors and modes that depends on unconsciousness and connection of ideas, feelings accepted by the majority of people in a society. Robertson, (1989) has a similar idea with above that culture includes both conscious and unconscious values, attitudes and symbols that shape transmitted from one generation to the next generations. Without a culture transmitted from the past, each new generation has to solve the most basic problems of human existence over again.

On the other hand, culture is the part of literature which is a term used to describe written and spoken material to represent the culture and tradition of a language or a people. Roohul, (1999) and Amini (2004) linked that the literature and culture have multifarious meaning as an identity of a nation and country that may vary for various reason, in common as the human-made part of human environment and it is the sum of total knowledge beliefs art, morals, laws, and customs.

Brooks (2000) stated literature and culture are two cases that are linked because literature is artistic regard of writing which includes such as drama, story, and poetry. Literature and culture are linked because literature is included; as theatre and character of people, and for the culture is talking about improving the learning of the ritual ceremony of bride and groom in Aileu of Selo village.

Zimmermann, (2012) also agreed that the literature and culture are sharing the rules and patterns of behavior that shape our lives as a social relationship that exists from one generation to another generation. And also culture and literature are things that make social life is possible. Another side, literature is a tool for communication that has an important role in the traditional living community.

Mark, (2009) explains that literature (from the Latin 'Litter' meaning "letters, and referring to an acquaintance with the written word) is the written work of a specific culture, subculture, religion, philosophy or the study of such written work which may appear in poetry or in prose. Literature represents the culture and tradition of a language or a people and also widened to expand a ritual speech of bride and groom in East Timor special in Aileu district parts of Selo village.

Stein, (1999) argued that literature is an application to word human creation which encompasses arts, such as painting, dancing, singing, decorations views archive and all human creation. He adds that Literature is a part of a culture that is considered is a norm of life to regulate and govern the acts of people in order to live as a principle of a human being in a society.

The Ritual Speech of Traditional Bride (umane) and Groom (mane-foun) Ceremony is one of the local cultures that had been considered as the local wisdom to be well-preserved and developed it by the particular group of people in Aileu especially as the identity of Selo village.

Local wisdom can be understood as natural knowledge of local people or local principles. This local tradition is a norm that governs the action of people whose attitudes and personalities are mature to be able to develop local potentials and making changes towards the better in the community. In other words, local wisdom is a traditional culture that is inherited by the ancestors and utilized to organize the people's lives or to regulate the life of the community based on the doctrine.

As stated above, the ritual speech is as an oral traditional culture to be celebrated by both families of the bride and groom to hand over in order to live together as one family. Mbete (2008) also adds that the ritual is a series of activities that are bound to certain rules, such as those relating to customs within the culture.

The bride and groom are both processing as the social performance of cultures that progress from the most primitive stages of society. The traditional bride and groom ceremony is normally celebrated as a farewell party to say good-bye before handing over the bride (feto-foun) to the family of the groom (mane-foun).

Furthermore, the family of the groom welcomes the bride by expressing their feeling/belief through the ritual speech or message which is intended to emphasize that can unite to live together as a marriage to be more harmonious of a new family. The act of marriage has traditionally profoundly affected individuals, families, communities and even nations since the joining of a couple links both them and their families and implicitly those around them. Westermarck, (1936) argued that marriage as a social institution and defined it in terms of relationships being recognized by custom or law. He also added that the institution of marriage has most probably developed out of a primitive habit for a man and a woman, or several women, to live together, to have sexual relations with each other, and to rear their offspring in common. This habit was sanctioned by custom, and afterward by law, and thus, transformed into a social institution.

This is why the ritual speech of both bride and groom families is to promise their stable natural regulation and there is the spiritual influence for positive reinforcement to continue their mission as a new couple during the living long together. It is meant that no one will do them apart, only death will do them apart. Through the oral ritual speech, the bride and groom must have been officially recognized as a marriage ceremony by the local traditional authorities, families, and community.

As in the Bible, a book of Malachi determines that marriage is a holy covenant made by God and as in the book of Matthew who determines when a man marries he leaves his parents and forms a new family with his wife. Matthew (19:4-6), declares that marriage a lifelong commitment that cannot be dissolved except by the death of a partner according to Christian beliefs.

Thus, the process of the traditional marriage ceremony is first started to knock the door 'tuku odamatan' and invite all the families or relatives to discuss the dowry 'Barlake'. It is one of the cultural value which means to regulate the indigenous people of Aileu especially, in Selo village how to live as a family with a strong relationship with each other. This is why the value of culture needs to be preserved and developed for the next generation because it is being considered as a local genius/wisdom to be guaranteed by the indigenous people in Aileu. Aside from that, it is one of the principles which a norm to govern the action and attitude of local people to serve and respect each other to build a strong family within peace and love which is never ended.

Timor-Leste has thirteen districts with various types of cultures with its own uniqueness of culture that is the way people have to recognize their own background of lifestyle. Ritual speech of traditional bride and groom is one of the ceremonial action which is performed with ritual significance to honor and acknowledge that can be formal, informal, and casual, elaborate, simple, spontaneous, religious, and sacred or healing based on the local believing

Based on the phenomenological, when we observe the daily activities of communities at work or in the continuation of ritual culture, it can be said that people of Timor-Leste have a great deal of local knowledge. Aileu is one of the municipalities in Timor-Leste which is located in the Southern part of Dili city. It is a cold region and a wonderful place that is well known as the concentrated zone for the resistance group during the Indonesian colonial era. The name of Aileu, literally meaning derived from a tree which is two words of Mambae dialect". Aiya means tree and leu means intertwined itself; Therefore, Aileu is defined as a tree that is intertwined itself.

In Timor Leste, indigenous customary practices that surround marriage and relations between the families or clans of the bride and groom are called dowry 'barlake' (pronounced "baar-lake"). The bride is a woman just married or just about to be married. And the groom is the male version of a bride, who is just married or just about to be married.

The word bridegroom derived from the old English-brydguma which is composed between the bryd ("bride") and guma ("man"). The word bridegroom appears in the bible of both new and Old Testament that carries the same meaning as the husband of the bride. So, the traditional ceremony of ritual speech for the bride and groom as a cultural and church also knows that our culture can relate to God and nature.

This study of cultural value is the most important to learn and know deeply the profound meaning as the philosophical aspect in every local genius to be conserved and developed from every generation. The effect of it is now influencing people's life as morality and human dignity to be adjusted to make a strong relationship among the people, husband, and wife based on the doctrine of religious value. It can become the principle of the human relationship to guide us to live in love and peace permanently only the death do us part.

It is sometimes used to prevent and solve domestic violence as the broken home or believing it as the doctrine not to harass the people's lives but though the traditional ceremony could create the self-awareness of long life peaceful relationships between wife and husband. On the other hand, It is also used to educate the young generation to build peace for the welfare family and prosperity in the community or nation.

Today, the culture becomes the traditional law of life that brings a positive impact to the socio-economy problems. It is a natural principle to be maintained as a norm to govern the action in order to serve each other in society. Therefore, the culture must be studied deeply about the properties of a phenomenon in order to perform the interpretation of social phenomena to be adjusted with the modern life of human beings.

Collins, (1982) more clarifies that research design is a systematic investigation to establish a fact or collect information.
